

7. 30. 6, 8; although afflicted by Droṇa's arrows (śarārtāḥ), Pāñcālas did not give up fighting with him; Droṇa killed many of them 7. 31. 38-39; (49) On the thirteenth day, Pāñcālas, checked by Droṇa's arrows could not approach him who was protecting Kaurava army; that was a wonderful feat (tad adbhutam apaśyāma .../ yad enaṁ nābhyavartanta pāñcālāḥ ...) 7. 34. 10; Bhīma assured Abhimanyu that he, Pāñcālas and others would follow him when he entered the Cakravyūha 7. 34. 22; Duḥśāsana told Duryodhana that he would kill Abhimanyu in the presence of Pāñcālas and Pāñcālas 7. 38. 22; when Duḥśāsana swooned in his encounter with Abhimanyu, Pāñcālas raised a loud roar; led by Yudhiṣṭhira they then attacked Droṇa's army 7. 39. 17-18; Pāñcālas and others attacked Jayadratha who foiled their attempt to follow Abhimanyu 7. 42. 18; Arjuna would have himself protected Abhimanyu if he had known that Pāñcālas could not do that 7. 50. 74; Subhadra wondered who could kill Abhimanyu as though he was helpless when heroic Pāñcālas were there to help him 7. 55. 9; she felt contempt for the strength of Pāñcālas (pāñcālānāṁ ca dhig balam) 7. 55. 12; (50) Samjaya told the grieving Dhṛtarāṣṭra that Pāñcālas and Pāñcālas would (at the end of the war) realize that the calamity was due to his failure to adopt the right course (tat te buddhi-vyabhīcāram upalapsyanti .../ pāñcālā ...) 7. 62. 7; (51) On the fourteenth day, Pāñcālas fought a fierce battle with Kurus in front of the vyūha of Droṇa; Droṇa and many other kings on the side of Kauravas checked the onward march of Pāñcālas; when Kaurava army was being killed by

Pāñcālas, Droṇa scattered away Pāñcālas with arrows 7. 70. 3, 13-14, 27; Pāñcāla chariot-fighters saved Dhṛṣṭadyumna from the attack of Droṇa 7. 72. 35; Dhṛtarāṣṭra asked Samjaya what did the Pāñcālas do when in their attempt to get close to Arjuna, they were checked by Droṇa (bhāradvāja saṁvṛtāḥ); Samjaya told him that in the afternoon of that day Kurus and Pāñcālas fought each other with Droṇa as the bet (aparāhṇe mahārāja saṁgrāme .../ pāñcālānāṁ kurūnāṁ ca droṇe dyūtam avartata //); Pāñcālas, wanting to kill Droṇa showered arrows on him; in the fierce battle, Pāñcālas, wanting to break the army, used important missiles (tadānīkaṁ bibhītsanto mahāstrāṇi vyadarśayan) 7. 81. 1-5; demon Alambusa made a river of blood flow carrying away (dead) Pāñcālas 7. 83. 30; Droṇa killed twentyfive Pāñcāla warriors, known as great chariot-fighters and honoured by Dhṛṣṭadyumna (mahārathasamākhyātā dhṛṣṭadyumnasya saṁmatāḥ); he killed choice Pāñcāla warriors (pāñcālānāṁ ... varān varān) 7. 85. 28-29; when Droṇa defeated hundreds and thousands of Pāñcālas and killed many of them there went up a cry (of grief) (teṣāṁ samabhavac chabdo vadhyatām droṇasāyakaiḥ) 7. 85. 31-32; gods, Gandharvas and others who were watching the battle pointed out to one another the running away Pāñcālas 7. 85. 33; in the absence of Sātyaki, Yudhiṣṭhira was to be protected by Pāñcālas and others 7. 86. 45; Pāñcālas, when they faced Kṛtavarma, were attacked by him; hence they lost enthusiasm (vigatotsāhāḥ); but soon, like noble men, were ready to fight again desirous of attaining great fame (atiśṛhann ārya-