

Ed. 1. 220. 11 : sāmnāhikīm saṁnaddhāḥ sarve bhavateti sūcayantīm); Bhojas and others followed Balarāma when he decided to fight with Arjuna (taṁ ... anvapadyanta te sarve) 1. 212. 32 (Nī. on 1. 220. 32 : anvapadyanta anumoditavantaḥ); Bhojas and others went to Khāṇḍavaprastha to give nuptial gifts after the marriage of Subhadra; Kṛṣṇa along with Mahābhojas and others entered the city Khāṇḍavaprastha (keśavaḥ / vṛṣṇyandhakamahā-bhojaiḥ saṁvṛtaḥ) 1. 213. 29, 34; (2) When Bhoja Kṣatriyas (bhojarājanyān) had gone for sport to the Raivataka mountain, Śiśupāla attacked them, slew (some of) them and took them captive to his city 2. 42. 8; (3) Bhojas, Andhakas and Yādavas parted company with Kāṁsa and lived happily for a hundred years when Kṛṣṇa killed him (andhakā yādavā bhojāḥ sametāḥ kāṁsam atyajan ||... hate tasmin ... sarve modamānāḥ satam samāḥ) 2. 55. 6-7; (4) When Bhojas and others heard of Pāṇḍavas' exile, they came to the Dvaitavana to meet and console them 3. 13. 1; (5) Sātyaki suggested to Balarāma to wage war with Kauravas so that the army consisting of the principal warriors (yodhamukhyāḥ) of Bhojas and others might kill the sons of Dhṛtarāṣṭra and attain wide fame (loke yaśaḥ sphītam upākarotu) 3. 120. 19; (6) Bhojas and others went to Upaplavya to attend the marriage of Abhimanyu with Uttarā 4. 67. 24; then they returned to Dvārakā 5. 7. 1; (7) Kṛtavarma came with an army, akṣhauhiṇī strong and consisting of Bhojas and Andhakas, to Duryodhana 5. 19. 17; (8) Kṛṣṇa ruled over Bhoja Kṣatriyas (rājanyabhojān anuśāsit kṛṣṇaḥ) 5. 28. 9;

they, as well as Vārṣṇeyas, Kaukuras and Śrūjayas, followed the counsel of Kṛṣṇa; they were therefore able to control their enemies and give delight to their friends (upāsīnā vāsudevasya buddhiṁ nigṛhya śatrūn suhṛdo nandayanti) 5. 28. 11; (9) At the start of the war, Kṛtavarma with Bhojas and others guarded the Kaurava army in the south 6. 20. 14; (10) On the fourteenth day, Arjuna killed the army of Bhojas (bhojānīkaṁ nyapātayat) 7. 67. 16; Arjuna broke through the army of Bhojas which was difficult to break through (bhojānīkaṁ ca dustaram) 7. 69. 1; 7. 76. 13; Pāṇḍavas, checked by Kṛtavarma, stood firm since they wanted to encounter the army of Bhojas (bhojānīkepsavo raṇe) 7. 88. 59; later, Sātyaki also passed beyond the army of Bhojas (bhojānīkaṁ vyatikrānte) 7. 89. 39; 7. 96. 8; still later, Bhīma too went beyond the army of Bhojas (bhojānīkaṁ atikramya) 7. 103. 22; (11) On the fifteenth day, Kṛtavarma, along with the surviving Bhojas (bhojānīkena śiṣṭeṇa), fled from the battlefield when Droṇa met with death 7. 165. 79; (12) On the sixteenth day, Pāṇḍya killed southerners and Bhojas after depriving them of their weapons and armours 8. 15. 10; (13) Bhojas mentioned among those whose chariots were broken and who, along with their horses and elephants, were killed by Arjuna (sāśvarathadvipāḥ) 8. 51. 16-17; (14) When Kṛṣṇa returned to Dvārakā from Hāstinapura after the war Bhojas and others received him (abhyagacchan mahātmānam) 14. 58. 17; (15) Janamejaya asked Vaiśampāyana to narrate to him in details how Bhojas, the great chariot-fighters, were destroyed 16. 2. 1, 3;