

vad vīrāḥ prārthayanto mahad yaśaḥ) 7. 88. 57-59 (Nī. on Bom. Ed. 7. 113. 67: āryavat kulīnavat kulīnatvād iti yāvat); when defeated by Kṛtavarma they fled hither and thither 7. 90. 47-48; Dhṛtarāṣṭra wanted to know how Pāñcālas fought with Droṇa; both were deeply inimical to each other and Pāñcālas desired victory for Yudhiṣṭhira 7. 89. 41; Droṇa, having seen that his vyūha was put into disorder by Pāñdavas and Pāñcālas, endeavoured to put it into order; he succeeded in pushing back Pāñdavas and Pāñcālas 7. 93. 35; brave Pāñcālas and Pāñdavas rushed from all sides on Droṇa to kill him 7. 97. 51; Duḥśāsana had formed great enmity with Pāñcālas 7. 98. 4; Droṇa hastened moderately towards Pāñcālas (javam āsthāya madhyamam) and put them to flight; announcing his name while fighting (nāma viśrāvya samyuge) he killed many of them 7. 98. 24-26; Pāñcālas covered Droṇa from all sides when he was checked by Vīraketu; they showered Droṇa with fiery arrows, costly Tomaras (tomaraiś ca mahādhanaiḥ) and various other weapons; Droṇa broke their arrows 7. 98. 30-32; Pāñcālas shouted that Droṇa would surrender to their king (vaśam eṣyati no rājñāḥ) 7. 98. 55; when the horses of Dhṛṣṭadyumna's chariot ran in all directions, Droṇa forced Pāñcālas to run away; defeating them Droṇa put his vyūha in order (svam vyūham punar āsthāya) 7. 98. 57-58; when Duryodhana challenged Yudhiṣṭhira, Pāñcālas rushed towards him; Droṇa checked their advance 7. 100. 36-38; Dhṛṣṭaketu wanted to attack Droṇa who was killing Pāñcāla army 7. 101. 23; Pāñcālas trembled (samakam-panta) as they were getting killed by

Droṇa 7. 101. 47, 53; the great fighters of Pāñcālas were as though held at their thighs by Droṇa (ūrugrāhagṛhītā hi pāñcālānām mahārathāḥ) 7. 101. 49 (Nī. on Bom. Ed. 7. 125. 52: ūrugrāhaḥ ūrustambhaḥ); when Cekitāna's charioteer was killed, Pāñcālas were afraid; Droṇa made them run away 7. 101. 67-68; when Pāñcāla army was reduced in number by Droṇa, Yudhiṣṭhira did not know who could go to save them 7. 102. 3-4; when the vyūhas of Pāñdavas were put into disorder, Pāñcālas and Pārthas went back a long way (vyūheṣv ālodyamāneṣu pāñdavanām tatas tataḥ / sudūram anvayuh pārthāḥ pāñcālāḥ saha somakaiḥ ||) 7. 102. 1; when Bhīma started to help Arjuna, Pāñcālas followed him 7. 102. 67; Droṇa wanted to remain at his place to check the advancing Pāñcālas 7. 105. 21; Dhṛtarāṣṭra told Saṁjaya that if ever Pāñcālas were to fight with Bhīma they would not be able to protect their lives (na bhīmamukhasaṁprāpto mucyeretī matir mama /... na pāñcālā ... jānanti yudhi saṁrabdhā jīvitam parirakṣitum) 7. 110. 22-23; Duryodhana pointed out to Droṇa, Śikhaṇḍin who led the Pāñcāla army 7. 125. 11; he told Droṇa that either he would kill Pāñcālas and Pāñdavas or else get killed by them 7. 125. 25; Droṇa felt himself sinking in the sin of Dhṛṣṭadyumna since he had not yet killed him, Śikhaṇḍin and Pāñcālas (majjantam iva cātmānam dhṛṣṭadyumnasya kilbiṣe); he could not take off his armour until he had killed Pāñcālas 7. 126. 25, 32; (52) In the fierce battle that was fought during the night between fourteenth and fifteenth day the reporters on the battlefield like Saṁjaya could distinguish the Pāñcālas from