

sarvān vimukhāṃś cakre kāmścin ninye yamakṣayam) 7. 129. 34-35; Dhṛtarāṣṭra asked Saṃjaya how did Kauravas feel when Droṇa entered the (army of) Sṛñjayas (kā vo 'bhūd vai matis tadā) 7. 130. 1; Sṛñjayas and Pāñcālas followed Bhīma and Arjuna who showered arrows on Droṇa trying to scatter the army of Drupada with Vāyavyāstra 7. 132. 37, 41; 7. 136. 14; Aśvatthāman challenged his opponents to attack him and then killed Pāñcālas and Sṛñjayas; they abandoned Aśvatthāman and fled in all directions (vyadravanta diśo daśa 7. 135. 19) when their chariots and banners were scattered (viprakīrṇarathadhvajāḥ) 7. 135. 51; Duryodhana asked Duḥśāsana and his other brothers to offer protection to Droṇa who would then kill Sṛñjayas and their kings (sṛñjayāṃś ca sarājakān); when all Sṛñjayas were killed, Aśvatthāman would kill Dhṛṣṭadyumna 7. 139. 24-25; in the fighting that followed Aśvatthāman covered Drupada and Droṇa covered Sṛñjayas with smooth arrows (chādayām āsatuh saṃkhye śaraiḥ saṃnataparvabhiḥ) 7. 139. 31; when Aśvatthāman swooned while fighting with Ghaṭotkaca, Pāñcālas and Sṛñjayas raised a loud roar (śmīhanādāṃ pracakṛire) 7. 141. 32; considering that Bhīma had killed Duryodhana, Pāñcālas, Sṛñjayas and others made all effort to attack Droṇa to fight with him (sarvodyogenābhijagmur ...); a fierce battle then was fought 7. 141. 60; when Pāñcālas and Sṛñjayas were being killed by Karna, they apprehended his presence nearby even when a blade of grass stirred (tṛṇapraspandanāc cāpi sūta-putraṃ sma menire) 7. 148. 15 (Nī. on Bom. Ed. 7. 173. 19 : atibhayāt tṛṇacalanamātrenāpt karnaṃ prāptaṃ menire); they mistook a running warrior on their own side to be Karna (api svam samare yodham dhāvamānaṃ vicetasah / karnaṃ evābhya-manyanta ...); hence, afraid, they ran but Karna attacked them from behind (prsthato vikṛāṇ sarān) 7. 148. 15-17; when Pāñcālas and Sṛñjayas were excessively tormented by the Rākṣasas of Alāyudha they had no peace of mind (na śāntīm lebhire tatra) 7. 152. 31; Dhṛtarāṣṭra wondered why Karna, instead of killing Ghaṭotkaca, did not kill Arjuna with the śakti given to him by Indra; for, the death of Arjuna would have meant the death of all Pāñḍavas and Sṛñjayas long ago 7. 157. 2; the same opinion was held by Kṛṣṇa (and hence he deluded the mind of Karna whenever he faced Arjuna) 7. 157. 35; Dhṛtarāṣṭra asked Saṃjaya how did Sṛñjayas and Pāñcālas with their armies arrayed and in striking position (vyūdhānīkāḥ prahārtṇaḥ) fight with Kurus and how did they attack Droṇa who, not caring for his life, had plunged into their army after the death of Ghaṭotkaca (jīvitam tyaktvā gāhamānaṃ varūthīm) 7. 158. 13-15; Droṇa killed three grand-sons of Drupada and then defeated Cedis, Kekayas, Sṛñjayas and Matsyas 7. 161. 31-32; (27) On the fifteenth day, Pāñcālas and Sṛñjayas, although they were being killed by Droṇa, attacked him and confused him (mohayanto mahāratham) 7. 164. 60; after killing Vasudāna (king of Pāñśūrāṣṭra), Droṇa killed six thousand Sṛñjayas 7. 164. 85; exhorted by Yudhiṣṭhira to assist Dhṛṣṭadyumna, the great chariot-fighters of Sṛñjayas attacked Droṇa in order to kill him; Droṇa with great speed moved against them not minding his death (martavyam itī nīcītaḥ);
