

50; (33) Duryodhana and others were to kill Pāñcālas in battle 5. 162. 22; Droṇa was to burn Pāñcālas (pradhakṣyati sa pāñcālān) 5. 164. 20; Pāñcālas would run in all directions when they encountered Karna 5. 165. 21; (34) Pāñcālas and Prabhadrakas formed the army of Śikhaṇḍin 5. 168. 3; (35) Hiraṇyavarman's friends wanted to kill Drupada and instal another king in the Pāñcāla country if Śikhaṇḍin proved to be a girl 5. 191. 8; (36) Samjaya reported that Bhīṣma showered arrows on Pāñcālas 6. 15. 25; on the first day of war, Bhīṣma's chariot moved very often among Pāñcālas and he killed them 6. 45. 4, 54; (37) On the second day, Arjuna asked Kṛṣṇa to take him to Bhīṣma since Droṇa and others, protected by Bhīṣma, would kill Pāñcālas 6. 48. 15 (13); Pāñcālas cheered loudly when Dhr̥ṣṭadyumna cut off a fierce and shining arrow discharged at him by Droṇa 6. 49. 13; Bhīṣma was honoured by Pāñcālas when he killed Kalinga warriors 6. 50. 110 (108); (38) On the third day, Pāñcālas stood in the middle of the Ardha-candravyūha of the Pāṇḍavas 6. 52. 14, 10; Dhr̥ṣṭarāṣṭra asked Samjaya how the Pāñcālas fared against Bhīṣma 6. 55. 2; seeing the river of blood made to flow by Arjuna's sharp arrows, Pāñcālas delightfully raised a loud roar 6. 55. 126, (121-125); (39) On the fourth day, the chief warriors of Pāñcālas stood at the same place of the same vyūha as they did on the previous day 6. 56. 11; when Bhīṣma and others marched to help Bhagadatta, Pāñcālas and others chased them; since Bhīṣma did not like to continue fighting with Ghaṭotkaca, Pāñcālas and others he thought of declaring the end of the war for that day 6. 60. 64, 68; (40) On the fifth day, although Pāñcālas were getting killed by Bhīṣma, they rushed at him with spirited mind (āryām yuddhe matim kṛtvā) 6. 68. 31; (41) On the sixth day, Bhīṣma put to death the armies of Pāñcālas with arrows the joints of which were smooth 6. 75. 57; (42) On the seventh day, Droṇa scattered away Pāñcālas (vyadhamat) 6. 82. 38; (43) On the eighth day, Bhīṣma felled down great Pāñcāla archers, but not afraid of death (tyaktvā mṛtyukṛtam bhayam), they attacked Bhīṣma; he cut off their hands and heads and broke their chariots; those who fought from horsebacks also lost their heads 6. 84. 3-6; Bhīṣma strove to kill Pāñcālas while Arjuna fought with their adversaries to protect them 6. 89. 9; when Bhagadatta wanted to reach Yudhiṣṭhira, he had to fight a fierce battle with Pāñcālas who were prepared to fight with weapons (udyatā-yudhaiḥ) 6. 91. 80; on the night of that day, Duryodhana reminded Bhīṣma of his vow to kill Pāñcālas 6. 93. 37; Bhīṣma assured Duryodhana that he would kill all Pāñcālas who were taking part in the war or would get himself killed by them 6. 94. 14-15; (44) On the ninth day, Duryodhana told Duḥśāsana that if they protected Bhīṣma, he would kill Pāñcālas who had made a common cause with Pāṇḍavas (yattān pāñcālān pāṇḍavaiḥ saha) 6. 101. 4; (45) On the tenth day, Dhr̥ṣṭadyumna, protected by Pāñcālas, stood behind Sātyaki and Cekitāna in the Sarvaśatrūnibarhaṇavyūha of Pāṇḍavas; Bhīṣma rushed towards them 6. 104. 4, 6, 29; Pāñcālas tried to check Bhīṣma who was killing his opponents 6. 105. 8; Bhīṣma