

war Duryodhana boasted that, helped by his army, he would fight against Cedis and all those on the side of Pāṇḍavas 9. 2. 23; (10) On the first day of the war, Bhīṣma's banner was seen moving in the army of the Pāṇḍavas consisting of warriors from Cedi, Kāśi and Karūṣa countries 6. 45. 3-4; (11) On the second day, Bhīṣma showered them with arrows 6. 48. 9; (12) On the same day Bhīma faced the attack of Ketumant helped by the Cedis (on the side of the Kauravas) (bhīma-senaḥ ... ārchād ... ketumantaṁ ca ... āyātam saha cedibhiḥ) 6. 50. 5; Śrutāyu and Ketumant attacked Bhīma surrounded by Cedis (on the Pāṇḍavas' side) 6. 50. 6, 8; Cedis were outnumbered by Kaliṅgas and Niṣādas; they fought bravely but, finally, they returned abandoning Bhīma; even though Cedis deserted Bhīma (saṁni-vṛtteṣu cediṣu) he continued to fight with Kaliṅgas 6. 50. 13-16; (13) On the third day, Cedis, led by Dhṛṣṭaketu, stood on the right side of the Ardhacandravyūha of Pāṇḍavas 6. 52. 10, 13; towards the end of the same day, Cedis and others raised a loud roar with delight due to the great havoc caused by Arjuna 6. 55. 126; (14) On the fourth day, Cedis occupied the same place in the Vyūha as on the previous day 6. 56. 11; (15) On the ninth and tenth day, Bhīṣma killed fourteen thousand Cedi, Kāśi and Karūṣa warriors along with their horses, chariots and elephants (savājī-rathakuñjarāḥ) 6. 102. 17-18; 6. 112. 73; (16) On the tenth day, Śikhaṇḍin, along with Cedis and Pāṇcālas, attacked Bhīṣma 6. 111. 26; they rushed at Bhīṣma, producing noise, riding chariots and horses and elephants; some of them were footsoldiers (tataḥ hilaḥilāśabdāḥ kṣaṇena samapadyata / matsyapāñcālacedīnām ... te varāśvarathavratāir vāraṇaiḥ sapadāti-bhiḥ) 6. 113. 47-48; on the seventeenth day of war, Kṛṣṇa, while recounting the past incidents, reminded Arjuna that Cedis and others, protected by him, had reduced the army of the enemies; but Bhīṣma succeeded in putting many of them to death 8. 51. 6, 27, 32; (17) On the eleventh day, Dhṛtarāṣṭra feared that Dhṛṣṭadyumna, helped by Cedis and others, had killed Droṇa 7. 8. 27; (18) On the twelfth day, seeing Yudhiṣṭhira running away from Droṇa, Cedis, Kārūṣas and others attacked Droṇa; Droṇa defeated them repeatedly 7. 20. 18, 23; Droṇa's arrows put Cedis, Kekayas into utter disorder; they were carried away like small boats by the strong current of the river (sindhor iva mahaughena hriyamāṇān yathā plavān) 7. 21. 7-8; Droṇa killed many Cedis 7. 31. 39; (19) The king of Cedis showering arrows, kept Ambaṣṭha away from Droṇa 7. 24. 47; (20) Subhadra blamed Cedis and others neglecting Abhimanyu's fall in battle 7. 55. 13; (21) On the fourteenth day, Alambusa Rākṣasa made a river of blood flow carrying away many Cedis and others 7. 83. 30; Kṛtavarma defeated Cedis and others 7. 90. 47; Cedis and others, delighted, attacked Droṇa crying 'kill Droṇa, kill Droṇa'; they made effort with all their might to kill Droṇa; Droṇa killed them, specially their chiefs, with arrows; seeing them diminished Pāñcālas trembled 7. 101. 50-53; Duryodhana struck Cedis with many sharp arrows 7. 128. 23; (22) During the night war (fourteenth-fifteenth day),