

Nilakanṭha is cited references are also given to the Bombay edition in order to enable the reader to locate Nilakanṭha's text.<sup>1</sup>

7. There are a few adjectival entries which cannot be strictly called names, e. g. Āsura ( pp. 92. 2-93. 1 ), Gāndharva ( p. 103. 1-2 ). These have been included for the sake of completeness. For a similar reason, and also because they have some important information to give, there are entries of some appellative words although the objects denoted by them are not named, e. g. Kīṭa ( p. 86. 1 ); the entries like Paraśu ( p. 111. 1 ), Pāśa ( p. 113. 2 ), etc. appear here under the section on Names only so far as they are associated with some definite persons or deities. Where this is not the case their treatment will be found later under the section on weapons.

*

*

*

In the end I have great pleasure in expressing my thankfulness to Dr. R. N. Dandekar for his encouragement and continued interest in the progress of the Project, to my colleagues in the Institute with whom I had the benefit of discussing various points of interpretation, and to the past and present workers in the Epilogue Department. I am also thankful to the Institute's Office and library staff, as also to the Press Staff for bearing with my hand-written sheets of entries.

M. A. Mehendale

1. Unfortunately these have been missed under the entries Āśvakranda ( p. 4. 1 ) and Ulūka ( p. 6. 1 ) which in both cases should be : 1. 32. 18 Bom. Ed.